Bill White's Paper out in Emporia, Kansas, is Going to Get in Bad with the M.D.'s if it Doesn't Watch Out.

Old Charlie Lambert writes things

For William Allen White's paper out in Emporia.

We do not mean that Charley really is old

The "old" is just a sort of intimate touch.

But Charlie can sling ink.

A lot of people think Bill White writes the editorials that Charlie writes.

This means they are both such down-right human sort of human beings that when they're as pleased as pie about something they come right out and say so.

Charlie Lambert was feeling like that the other day when he made his leading editorial about a book.

Almost every publisher in the country would be plastering extracts from it in his advertising.

It is some editorial. Also some book. Judge for yourself. Here it is:

Saves Doctor Bills

"Better than any tonic for tired nerves or a jaded brain is the stimulating effect on the reader of 'Brite and Fair' by Henry A. Shute, author of 'The Real Diary of a Real Boy.'

"Zero spirits rise higher than the price of shoes when reading of the pranks of 'Beany,' 'Pewt' and 'Plupy.'

"There's a deep, wholesome laugh on every page and a constant chuckle throughout the book.

"The doings of 'the Terrible 3,' whose records were always faithfully written by 'Plupy' because he could 'spell beter'n the rest,' the classic tale of rotten-egging, the medicine fakir, or the adventures of the pet birds, 'Hork' and 'Spitt' would evoke laughter from a pleurisy sufferer.

"The thought runs through the reader's mind that the author knows boys like a book or has a marvelous memory of his own childhood days.

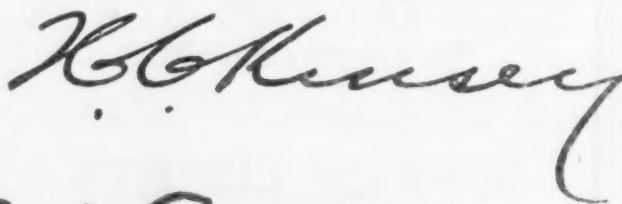

"The book is published by the Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York. It sells for $1.90, regardless of the fact that the writer says, 'I woodent have ennybody read this diry for 2 millions dolars.'"

The fun of the thing is that what Mr. Lambert says in his piece is what everybody says who has read Brite and Fair.

Therefore—

Suggestion to dealers:

Ask a customer to read any page of Brite and Fair and you will make a sale, a friend and a booster.

Fifty Contemporary One-Act Plays

Edited by FRANK SHAY and PIERRE LOVING

THIS volume contains FIFTY REPRESENTATIVE ONE-ACT PLAYS of the MODERN THEATRE, chosen from the dramatic works of contemporary writers all over the world and is the second volume in the Stewart Kidd Dramatic Anthologies, the first being European Theories of the Drama, by Barrett H. Clark, which has been so enthusiastically received.

The editors have scrupulously sifted countless plays and have selected the best available in English. One-half the plays have never before been published in book form; thirty-one are no longer available in any other edition.

Both Frank Shay and Pierre Loving have been connected for many years with little theatres in the United States. This connection has afforded them exceptional opportunities for testing the validity of a great number of one-act plays, both as regards their literary value and dramatic possibilities in actual production.

The work satisfies a long felt want for a handy collection of the choicest plays produced by the art theatres all over the world. It is a complete repertory for a little theatre; a volume for the study of the modern drama, a representative collection of the world's best short plays.

Our New Book On
The California-Japanese Question
MUST WE FIGHT JAPAN?

By Walter B. Pitkin

Associate Professor of Journalism, Columbia University.

WILL "START SOMETHING" if we are not mistaken. You'll agree with us when you consider that he says:

That Japanese naval officers are inflaming their men against us, and Japanese students debate: "Should We Declare War on the United States?"

That there are more elements which point toward war with Japan than pointed toward war with Germany

That we cannot possibly "lick" Japan

That Japan cannot seriously injure us

That Japanese laborers in California are very decent people

That, nevertheless, they menace not California alone, but all America and American standards of living

That he proposes to let them colonize in Mexico and South America

That we set free the Philippines at once, to convince Japan we do not threaten her

That we agree with Great Britain and Japan on a drastic naval disarmament plan

That we make all Japanese here full citizens

That we stop all immigration until we "become a nation, instead of a Super-Balkans."

The book is well thought out and authenticated, the sound result of much investigation. Its sensational features are those of the very serious situation itself.

THE RIDDLE OF THE MYSTERIOUS LIGHT

Opening with the kidnapping of Cleek's famous associate, Inspector Narkom of Scotland Yard, and Cleek's rescue of him from the very dens of his old time enemies, the Apaches of Paris, the adventures of the famous detective are, in this book, among the cleverest yet conceived by the Hanshews.

"POTTERISM"

By ROSE MACAULAY

$2.00

This novel is as safe as wheat, as good as gold. It is one of the joys of book-selling to see your stacks of "Potterism" melt away, to order again, again to see "Potterism" melt away, and yet again! Really, the point of saturation seems far distant.

"ALASKA MAN'S LUCK"

By HJALMAR RUTZEBECK

$2.00

This stirring romance of fact, now in the beginning of its third edition, must not be considered a book for one or two seasons. While comparisons often sound grandiloquent, and honest ones are difficult to make, yet we believe that "Alaska Man's Luck" will forever be found on the same shelf with such fine, red-blooded books of the out-of-doors as "The Call of the Wild" and "The Spell of the Yukon." Your most discriminating customers will thank you for bringing this book to their attention. Have you read the book yourself? If not, a treat is in store for you and a copy is yours for the asking.

"THE IMPERIAL ORGY"

By EDGAR SALTUS

$3.00

One of the surprises of the season. Well knowing the rare interest of the book, its author's brilliant style so admirably displayed in it, and its colorful descriptions of the tremendous orgy that the history of the Czars has been, nevertheless the instantaneous recognition of "The Imperial Orgy's" rare qualities exhausted the first edition almost in a wink. Since the first of the year sales have been mounting up, demonstrating that the real sale of the book is only just starting, and that it is in essence a year-round book, not merely a holiday item.

"THE HOUSE WITH A BAD NAME"

By PERLEY POORE SHEEHAN

$1.90

A mystery story and romance that is far above anything in this class of fiction that has appeared in many years. This statement is made with deliberation. The characters are real, not mere puppets, and the working-out of the well-concealed mystery and love story is rarely handled. One must read to the very last page to solve the mystery—it is that kind of a book.

MADAME GILBERT'S CANNIBAL

By Bennet Capplestone

Perhaps you remember Mme. Gilbert from one of the most amusing episodes in "The Lost Naval Papers." She is tact itself even when facing the difficult task of introducing to London Society as a presentable peer the half-caste son of an English ne'er-do-well. But while the situation is admirable comedy it is also inevitable tragedy. The gay wrapper is curiosity stirring. $2.00

THE TRAGIC BRIDE

By Francis Brett Young

As fascinating through its power of subtly suggesting atmosphere, as "The Crescent Moon," or "Undergrowth," and as full of meat as "The Young Physician." It is a story of young love, love that developed and ennobled both lad and girl on the very edge of shipwreck.

GREEN APPLE HARVEST

By Sheila Kaye Smith

As clear-cut as her "Tamarisk Town" is this story of the Sussex lad vibrating between the hot passionate temptations which seem to him to merit eternal punishment and the glad consciousness of being "saved." The group of Sussex folk who surround him are masterpieces of reality.

THE MAN IN THE DARK

By Albert Payson Terhune

A thrilling story of a West Virginia hill-billy's upward fight, a story of moon-shining, night riders, of plots and intrigue with an undercurrent of love's gradual growth. And, of course, there is a collie dog, but this is a human story.

CALL MR. FORTUNE

By H. C. Bailey

Detective stories of an unusual type with a touch in them of the gay recklessness which made "The Highwayman" and "The Gamesters" popular. As a doctor, "Reggie" is a delightful fellow. As an efficient assistant to Scotland Yard he is deadly. The thrills along one's spine when "Reggie" flicks into the beyond a quite superfluous criminal are the evidence that these are among the best of detective stories.

THE MAN-KILLERS

By Dane Coolidge

A story of Kentucky feuds transplanted into western mountain valleys and complicated with a range war and the running fight between ranchers and rustlers. As the readers of "Silver and Gold," etc., know, the atmosphere of Mr. Coolidge's "West" is genuine and his humor contagious. $2.00

PROBABLY READY IN FEBRUARY

VELVET BLACK

By Richard Washburn Child

Stories whose telling is as enjoyable as their substance. Each has the thrill in it of tense feeling as when love of life gives the lie to convictions one had believed dearer than life. Readers of "The Vanishing Men" know how well Mr. Child can handle a mystery story.

If you are interested in fiction of a quality above the average place your orders early for these novels, every one of which is by a well-known and popular writer.

The Letters of William James

Edited by his son, HENRY JAMES

Published in November, 1920, this important publication has been listed by the Boston Globe for five successive weeks under "Best Sellers for the Week." The demand goes steadily on and we predict these Letters will be among the leaders in biography for 1921.

The Springfield Republican says:

"As there has been no other American, and, indeed, no other man, like William James, so there can never be another collection of letters like this, full of a unique and precious personality. All who care for genius in its most human and most winning manifestations will find the books a treasure-house."

The New York Evening Post says:

"They present a remarkable union of charm and delicious fun, graciousness, and affection, rich vocabulary and portrait-painting touch, penetrating and free-spoken comment on men, places, and nations. They have that great quality of letters, a spirit, a 'go.' Moreover, the generous self-forgetful outflow of appreciation and admiration for other men and their works (friends, critics, opponents as much as any) gives the whole a rare nobility and moral dignity."

Prices Past and Present

PROBABLY the best feature of the book-trade in 1920 is that both publishers, and retailers have emerged from a complicated and difficult year with increased confidence in themselves and in the possibilities for the growth of the business. The difficult problems of manufacture and production and the problem of promptly facing the new conditions, brought about by the sudden cessation of the war, has brought to the trade a consciousness of solidarity between producers and distributors that has not before existed.

During 1919 and well into 1920, there was a constant necessity on the part of publishers to put forward every effort in order to bring production up to the demands of the distributors, and to do this without needlessly accepting increased costs from printers and paper makers, increases that were turning up in every business that was under the pressure of increased production needs. In these conditions the question of price has been the most difficult and insistent during the past year. As was shown by the investigation made early in the fall, hundreds of books that would ordinarily have a good chance for continuous sale had been allowed to go out of print, because the publishers had felt that it would be difficult to obtain a sale at a price level that was made necessary by the increased cost. The larger publishers had anywhere from a hundred to five hundred titles out of print. These figures would serve as a direct answer to those who felt that publishers had put prices to a level that was a plain indication of profiteering. If such was the case, certainly publishers would not have allowed hundreds of good titles to go out of print. Just what the price increases had been in the last two years could not be accurately summarized, as the books vary in size and style from year to year, but estimates based on long lists of books have indicated that, old and new titles taken together, the average increase has been just about fifty per cent since the paper prices began to rise. A valuable sidelight on price levels is given by averaging the prices of the best selling fiction for the last four years. These lists as gathered by Books of the Month cover about forty titles.

Fiction level	January, 1918.	$1.44
"	1919,	1.50
"	1920,	1.60
"	1921,	1.95

This was a little less than forty per cent increase, and gives some support to the contention of those among the publishers who felt that the increases of 1919 were altogether too little to cover the costs that were so rapidly rising. While fiction was going from $1.44 to $1.60, paper had tripled in cost and printing practically doubled. A comparison in the field of juveniles has been made by comparing fifty popular titles of 1918 with a similar group in 1920. In the class of boys' and girls' stories the average of 1918 was $1.40, and in 1920, $1.60. In the field of illustrated books and new editions of the classics the level had changed from $2.10 to $2.60. No comparison can be completely accurate, but the general indication for these groups is probably in line with what has happened. A group of the last three years has shown considerable shifting in the character of the non-fiction sold, which makes comparisons difficult. In 1918 the best selling non-fiction was the war book at an average price of $1.50 to $2, and this class has now practically disappeared. A group of twenty popular volumes of biography in 1918 shows an average price per volume of $3.05; in 1919, $3.48; in 1920, $3.90. Poetry in that time has increased from an average of about $1.25 per volume to $1.60. Travel shows a smaller increase, from $3.30 to $3.80, tho this average, being obtained from only about twelve popular volumes in each year, cannot be taken as fully satisfactory.

With the settlement of the printers' negotiation on December 24th, price conditions have probably settled, and the public and book-trade can now more accurately estimate the prices of books for the year to come. The retailer, who has the actual contact with the public, is bound to have comments on price increases, but, as a large number of retailers handle other goods such as stationery or blank books, they have had increases to explain far larger than the changes in the printed book.

No one in the field of book distribution is so selfconscious as the publisher that any increase of price is a hindrance to sale, and the bookseller, librarian and public can rest assured that the best efforts of the publisher are put forward to hold books from any further advance.

The Year That Has Passed

AS trying as the year 1920 was to the publisher, owing to the dominant problem of increasing manufacturing costs, and to the retailer, owing to the question of purchasing at advancing prices, the year closed with no record of financial disaster to any publisher of prominence or to any dealer of importance. The summary of business statistics is happily brief, the statistics showing only nine failures in 1920 as against twelve in 1919.

Neither was the year productive of many new names in the list of publishers. Stoll & Edwards Company organized to start with 1921, Platt & Munk Company, Blaze Benziger & Company and Dorrance & Company, Philadelphia are among the few who, unafraid, launched their hopeful crafts, while Milton Bradley Company and A. W. Shaw Company wisely enlarged their lists of specialties for the regular retail trade.

On the other hand, an unusual number of new bookstores was started, with a very marked tendency to uncommon but pleasing cognomen. Thus we have now "The Haunted Bookshop" in Lincoln, Nebraska, "The Neighborhood Bookshop" and "The Holliday Bookshop," both in New York City, "Turkey Hill Bookshop" at Summit, New Jersey, "Orientalia" and "The Gotham Art and Book Mart," also in New York, "The Beacon Bookshop," naturally in Boston, "The Greenwood" in Wilmington, "Something Different Bookshop" in Atlantic City, "Ye Book Stalle," launched by J. W. Willcox-Follet Company, "The New Era Bookshop" and "The Walden Bookshop," the last three in Chicago. Doubleday, Page & Company added to their chain shops by establishing one in Kansas City by purchase of the old retail business of Bryant & Douglas Company, and a second in Toledo at LaSalle & Koch's. Among other newcomers in the field of retailing were Edward B. Mitchell in Hartford and R. E. Hartwick in Detroit. The most interesting venture of the year in selling was the famous "Caravan Bookshop," whose itinerary marks an unusual, not to say thrilling, chapter in the history of book distribution.

The year also further developed the possibilities of the "Book Fair." The event at Marshall Field & Company in Chicago last year was followed by others, in Indianapolis at L. S. Ayres & Company, in Des Moines, at Harris-Emery Company, and in Richmond, Virginia, at Miller & Rhoads; and it is to be hoped that in 1921 a Book Fair of metropolitan proportions will be successfully launched, as becomes its field, in the great city of New York.

The year recorded the death of John C. Winston of Philadelphia, Matthew Bender, James T. White of New York, and Samuel Gabriel of New York, among publishers, and W. Y. Foote of Syracuse, A. B. Fifield (of E. P. Judd Company), New Haven, Charles E. Lauriat of Boston, John J. Newbegin of San Francisco, and George D. Smith of New York, among booksellers. The roll of authors who have ferried the Styx, includes some famous names in literature: William Loring Andrews, Cyrus Townsend Brady, Rhoda Broughton, Marjorie Benton Cooke, Mrs. B. M. Croker, Louise Imogene Guiney, William Dean Howells, Dr. J. H. Hyslop, Edgerton Castle, Eleanor H. Porter, William Marion Reedy, Olive Schreiner, Mrs. Humphry Ward and C. N. Williamson.

No glance at the record of the book-trade in America for 1920 would be complete without mention of the coming into life and action of the National Association of Book Publishers. It assumed at its very start an importance that means much to the publisher and the bookseller now and will mean much in the years to come. Its activities already are as numerous as they are broad and sensible, and as constructive in their objective as needed in the new era of better books and better distribution upon which the trade has entered with so much enthusiasm.

"America Month"

NO section of the general plan for Year Round Bookselling could be better assured of being promptly connected with the public's general trend of interest than the linking of the name of "America Month" with February activity. It is always inevitable that the birthdays of the two great Americans should cause special interest in our history and readers, but there is an additional interest this year, in that everyone is realizing that we owe it to our country to be better prepared to know what she has stood for in the past, in order that we may play our part better in the present. This is not solely an impulse to improve the citizenship of that other fellow, but the feeling that all of us need to reevaluate the blessings that come from being part of America.

The posters and fliers being sent out from the Campaign Headquarters will help dealers to put in displays that will be worth while, and there are dozens of ways in which the public can be drawn into the discussion and into a new interest in reading.

Book Sales

SPECIAL sales are an important feature of any sort of retailing, a prominent feature of book retailing. The appearance of the bargain signs loosens many purse strings; the resulting increase in sales totals helps many a retailer round a sharp corner or helps a publisher out of heavy and immobile investments.

What are the most characteristic forms these clearance sales take? Are all equally sound in their effect on business? The "publisher's remainder" is a common feature of the bargain sale. No publisher can be so supernaturally foresighted as to estimate exactly the size of all the editions he has to print. When the first couple of seasons are passed, the future demands can be estimated with fair accuracy and surplus stock jobbed out in lots of from 25 to 100 copies to cover bare manufacturing cost. The retailer who can supply an outlet for a quantity like this can offer his customers great bargains and yet make his customary margin of profit.

Another familiar feature of good bargain sales is the "special." Sets or valued single titles, remanufactured from plates that have already covered much of their cost and are so marketed in quantities that the retailer can offer the sets or volumes at very attractive rates while his supply from this source lasts. The plates from the era of subscription sets have supplied many good bargains in this field and such books as Tarbell's "Lincoln" or Brady's "Civil War Pictures" have reached wide new publics at remarkably low prices.

But whatever the retailer may purchase as special features for this sale, he always has to keep in mind the clearing up of his own stock as an annual or semi-annual necessity. The buyer with no overstock has not yet been found, and it is not always on the poor titles that his enthusiasm has run astray. Just what reductions will clear this overstock from the counters is for his merchant's instinct to judge. In but few instances can actual cost be obtained, fifty cent and dollar tables usually are covered with books of twice that value, and the merchants' satisfaction comes in releasing for new uses some locked-up capital and perhaps from having started a few more citizens into the book collecting habit.

Perhaps the only form of bargain book sale that leaves little satisfaction to the dealer or any ultimate advantage to the book-lover is the flat cut on all stock for a limited space of time, and this sort of sale is not usually indulged in unless the need of turning stock into cash is especially urgent. A twenty or twenty-five per cent reduction on all stock bring quick sales on the most staple stock and leaves the slower moving items on the shelves. Why should the book-lover please himself with Gay's Poems when Henley or Frost bear the same discount. The dealer usually takes down his discount sign to find that he ought to order in again much of the sold stock and must find other ways to start the sale of his overstock. An unsatisfactory fortnight for the bookseller and a cream-skimmed stock for the book-lover's subsequent browsings result from this sort of sale.

Drop in Magazine Advertising

AS the periodicals are the largest consumers of book paper, and their advertising pages govern very closely the total size of their issues, the reports of the January totals have been watched for by book publishers to see whether there was an indication of lessening pressure on the paper market at the turn of the year.

The figures given in Printers' Ink show that January advertising has fallen about 20% from the January figures of a year ago in fifty-five prominent magazines. This total is, however, over 40% more than the totals of either 1918 or 1919.

The amount of paper released by a 20% drop in magazine pages would, if made available in the weights needed for books, supply ample stock for the entire book market, and should certainly relieve some of the stringency on the supplies available.

The decrease affected all types of magazines with practically similar cuts.

Booksellers' League

THE January dinner of the Booksellers' League of New York was given at the famous Brevoort Hotel, in the Greenwich Village section, on Tuesday, January 18th. The return to the old Brevoort after several years' absence brought out an increased number of diners, more than one hundred being present. The president of the League, Ralph E. Wilson, staged the first act for C. C. Shoemaker of the Penn Publishing Co., who gave an intimate and an interesting story of the beginning of the "Betty Wales" books and how the series was hooked up with the "Betty Wales" dresses. His talk was illustrated by moving pictures used by the makers of the garments to train salespeople, showing the keen enterprise on the part of both publisher and maker in this most unusual conjunction.

Hector MacQuarrie, a New Zealander and author of "Tahiti Days," gave a highly amusing talk on the misconceptions of life in the South Sea Islands that emanate from some of the ill-informed travelers who have written of that remote spot. He told a number of good stories of mistakes he encountered in the vernacular of the two countries while touring the United States in propaganda work during the war. His plea for the unity of British and American interests was deeply touching and brought forth the heartiest applause. Royal Cortissoz, art critic of the New York Tribune, told of his adventures as a humble collector of books and paid a glowing tribute to several old time rare bookmen, among them S. G. Luyster and George J. Coombs, whom he had met and loved.

Altogether the evening will be remembered as one of the most interesting of the many good ones in recent years.

Holt Advertising Helps

THE Year Round Bookselling Campaign is going to be greatly helped if publishers will put into their copy suggestions that will bring to the public the general ideas and slogans. A good example of this is shown by the advertising copy of Holt & Company, as, for instance, a page in the February Atlantic commences "Buy A Book A Week. February is 'America Month.' The books here listed should be read by all interested in America's glorious history."

The Holt January advertisement began with "Start the year right. Resolve to buy a book a week thruout the year 1921 and you will insure yourself against dull evenings and 'blue' Sundays."

The more publishers will run the general slogans and carry them forward in their dealer helps, the more generally this idea will get to the public.

London Publisher Arrives

JONATHAN CAPE has registered at the Imperial Hotel in New York. This is his first visit to America since he has set up his own business of publishing at 11 Gower Street, London. Mr. Cape will be remembered as a former manager of Duckworth & Company. The New York trade will be glad to welcome another representative from London.

Educational Bill Amended

CONGRESSMAN TOWNER embodied an important revision in his famous Smith-Towner Bill before it was finally reported out of the House Committee on Education. This amendment provides specifically that in the state authorities alone shall rest all control of courses of study, plans and methods for carrying out the purposes and provisions of the Act. There had been the fear that the new Department of Education might become too omnipotent in directing educational affairs in the various sections. The Bill is being very strongly supported and seems likely to make favorable progress. Its plans would then become part of the general reorganization of executive departments, and the Bureau of Education would be transferred to the Department of Education, and many other boards, bureaus, etc., be put into related connection.

The Passing of Mulligan's

"MULLIGAN'S," one of the oldest bookstores in Newark, N. J., established more than forty years ago, has disposed of all stock, including books, stationery, and school supplies, to Hahne & Co.'s Department Store. The stock is now in process of removal, and Mulligan's is now but a memory. With the passing of this old established business, there remain but two bookshops, both in Department Stores, to supply the needs of a considerable local population and a large trade from the surrounding country.

Queer Fish

Of literary oddities,
I'm keenest on the "Coddities,"

I mean the boneless books about Cape Cod;
For I have never read one
That was out and out a dead 'un,

And some of them were very, very odd.

The One Hundred "Best Sellers" of the Last Quarter Century

By Irving Harlow Hart

THE publication of monthly lists of the "six best sellers" was begun by the Bookman with its first issue in January, 1895. These lists were based upon reports from individual booksellers in various parts of the country and were continued without a break until May, 1918. From May to October, 1918, no such lists were published in the Bookman. Since October, 1918, monthly reports of the relative popularity of books of fiction and non-fiction have been published by the new Bookman, based upon reports of books called for in public libraries in a number of the more important towns and cities in the United States.

Fortunately, the cessation of the publication of the Bookman lists did not leave the field of reports on "best sellers" entirely unoccupied, as Books of the Month, a trade journal published by the Dial, had already begun the publication of monthly lists of popular books. In January, 1920, this publication was taken over by the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY and the lists have been continued by them to date.

Until November, 1897, no monthly summary of the Bookman lists was given. From November, 1897, to March, 1901, the "six best sellers" for each month were listed, the order of rank being apparently determined by counting the whole number of times each book was mentioned in the booksellers' lists without regard to relative rank within these lists. Beginning with April, 1901, and continuing until May, 1918, the monthly summary published was made by scoring each book reported in the booksellers' lists, 10 points for each first, 8 for second, 7 for third, 6 for fourth, 5 for fifth, and 4 for sixth.

Only once, in May, 1903, did the Bookman attempt a comprehensive summary of its tables. Here a complicated combination of different systems of comparison was adopted and the ultimate rank of books and authors determined by taking into consideration for each book the total number of points, the average number of points, the number of times quoted in the individual lists, the number of times quoted first, the percentage of firsts, and the relative ranks derived from each of these systems. In this way the twenty-five most popular books and the twenty-five most popular authors for the years 1895 to 1902 were selected. At various times in later years comparative tables were published showing the rank in popularity of books published within the previous year. Several times comparisons were made covering a period of years.

In all of these comparisons, the total point system was used either as the sole or as the chief standard of measurement. This system is altogether unsatisfactory and unreliable as a measure of comparative popularity from year to year, inasmuch as the number of individual booksellers' reports varies so largely from month to month. In the earlier years this variation is from 19 to 33; in later years from 35 to 51. A book which ranked first in the total number of points for a series of months in 1917 might, therefore, secure a grand total approximately one thousand points in excess of those which might be credited to a book ranking first for a similar length of time in 1895.

For example, Maclaren's "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush" ranked first for seven successive months in 1895 with a total of 1117 points, an average of 159 points per month. Wells' "Mr. Britling Sees It Through" ranked first for eight successive months in 1916-17 with a total of 2419 points, an average of 302 points per month. Manifestly, no comparison of the relative popularity of these two books may be made from such figures, derived as they are from radically differing bases.

While no mathematical system may be devised, probably which will serve to measure accurately so illusive an element as the popularity of a book, it would seem that a much simpler and more satisfactory standard may readily be adopted. This may be secured by calculating for each book each month the percentage which its total points are of the maximum possible number of points and then by totalling all of these percentages for all the months in which a book appears in the lists.

In April, 1899, reports were published from twenty-seven different booksellers. Had any one book ranked first in every list, its maximum number of possible points would have been 270. For the month, Westcott's "David Harum" was reported first in twenty-five of the lists and received a total of 265 points or 98.1 per cent of the maximum possibility. The total of all percentages for the twenty-five months in which "David Harum" appeared in the lists is 926.1.

However accurate or inaccurate the individual booksellers' lists may have been, the percentage system must be accepted without reservation as an exact standard of measurement of the relative popularity of books as indicated in these lists and as a means of giving due weight to every appearance of a book in any and all of the booksellers' lists.

By this standard the twenty-five most popular books from January, 1895, to April, 1918, are those given in the table below. For the purpose of comparison of standards, the total number of points credited to each of these books for this period is also given, with their ranking on this basis. It will be seen that the total point system gives undue preference to books published in later years.

From the viewpoint of the mere statistician, the abandonment of the earlier plan of reporting individual booksellers' lists is unfortunate, as it necessitates the adoption of a somewhat less accurate standard of comparison in order to include the data covering the later months of the quarter-century period. The standard finally adopted by the compiler of these tables is a far simpler one than any of those previously mentioned and has at least the merit of a quasi-universality. It will continue to be applicable so long as lists of popular books are published. It involves consideration only of the six books ranked highest for each month and the adoption of a uniform system of crediting points to these books. The 10-8-7-6-5-4 point system has been accepted for this standard inasmuch as it was in use for the greater part of the period. It has been extended to include the lists previous to April, 1901, and subsequent to April, 1918. For the months since April, 1918, when the Bookman lists of "best sellers" were discontinued, the data used has been furnished thru the courtesy of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

Naturally, since the system of scoring used in the Books of the Month lists differs from that of the Bookman, the record for the year 1918 is somewhat lacking in unity. It is, however, much more nearly in accord with the old Bookman system than that based upon library reports and, hence, furnishes the most satisfactory available basis for the continuance of this compilation to the end of the quarter-century period.

One factor necessarily ignored in the adoption of the summary point system is that of the relative degree of popularity from month to month. A book may lead in a monthly summary by a very narrow or by a very large margin.

The six best sellers for April, 1898, were:

	Points.	Per cent.
1. Caleb West. Smith.....	167	57.5
2. Simon Dale. Hope.....	138	47.5
3. Shrewsbury. Weyman.....	80	27.5
4. Quo Vadis. Sienkiewicz.....	79	27.2
5. Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker. Mitchell .....	54	18.6
6. The Girl at Cobhurst's. Stock- ton .....	29	10.0
Maximum possible points ...	290

For April, 1899, the six best sellers were:

	Points.	Per cent.
1. David Harum. Westcott.....	265	98.1
2. When Knighthood Was in Flower. Major.....	137	50.7
3. Mr. Dooley in Peace and War. Dunne .....	73	27.0
4. Aylwin. Watts-Dunton.....	56	20.7
5. Red Rock. Page.....	52	19.2
6. The Day's Work. Kipling...	47	17.3
Maximum possible points ...	270

In April, 1898, the difference in percentage between the first and the second book is 10.0, in April, 1899, the difference is 47.4. The difference in percentage between the first and the sixth book in April, 1898, is one-tenth of one per cent more than the difference between the percentage of the first and the second in April, 1899. The inadequacy of the summary point system is readily seen from this comparison.

If the number of individual reports from which the six leading books for each month is computed had been uniform from month to month, the total point system would be an accurate measure of relative popularity. Since this is not true, the percentage system is the only accurate measure. For reasons already set forth, this system may not continue to be used by the compiler without access to the individual reports from the various booksellers.

Hence, recourse must be had to the summary point system.

By this system, the following are the one hundred most popular books of fiction in the twenty-five years from January 1895 to December 1919, arranged in order of relative rank. Too much weight should not be given to exact gradation or position in the list. However, the list may be accepted in the large as reasonably inclusive and satisfactory.

These one hundred books are the productions of fifty-nine authors. Sixty-two of the books were written by twenty-one authors. Authors having more than one book each to their credit are: Churchill 9, Parker 5, Wright 4, Porter, G. S. 4, Fox 3, King, B. 3, McCutcheon 3, Porter, E. H. 3, Smith 3, Tarkington 3, Burnett 2, Connor 2, Harrison 2, Major 2, Maclaren 2, Nicholson 2, Page 2, Rice 2, Rinehart 2, Ward 2, Wister 2.

Of the fifty-nine authors represented in the list forty-five are American; forty-three, from the United States and two, from Canada. Fourteen are foreign; twelve, British; one, a Pole and one, a Spaniard. Forty are men; and nineteen, women.

It is not the purpose of this article to enter the field of critical analysis of the list or to attempt to present conclusions drawn therefrom. The reader interested in such literary diversions may make his own analyses and draw his own conclusions. It is quite probable that no two such will agree.

Sir Philip Gibbs as Editor

SIR PHILIP GIBBS, whose name as a war correspondent, novelist and descriptive writer is a household word among millions of readers in English-speaking countries, has accepted the editorship of the Review of Reviews. His first number will appear on January 15th.

While retaining the general character of the Review, Sir Philip Gibbs has received promises of support from such old brilliant celebrities as Lord Robert Cecil, Augustine Birrell, Robert Bridges, G. K. Chesterton, Dean Inge, Sir Harry Johnston, Admiral Mark Kerr, Professor Gilbert Murray.

American Book Production, 1920

THE American book production statistics for 1920 based on the books recorded by the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during that year show a very slight decrease over the figures for 1919, a total of 8422 against 8594, or a loss of 172 in comparison with losses of 643 in 1919, 823 in 1918 and 385 in 1917. Pamphlets which are included in these figures showed a loss of 598 in contrast to the gains which have prevailed for several years (1919, 2853; 1918, 2376; 1917, 2051).

Books by American authors have lost, while books by foreign authors manufactured in this country show a slight increase, and importations have gained by 168 over last year's figures.

Eleven classes show gains of which the most marked are: Fiction, 250; Geography and Travel, 76, doubtless due to the removal of the war ban on travel; Juvenile Books, 66; Poetry and Drama, 58; and Biography, 49. There were slight gains in Games and Amusements, Fine Arts, General Literature, Philosophy and Technical Books.

So few books on Military and Naval Science were published in 1920 that they have been included with Technical Books. Agriculture (—117), Medicine and Hygiene (—111), Business (—91) and Sociology (—87) show the next heaviest losses.

Classified Analysis of Books Published During 1920 in Great Britain

THE Publishers' Circular and Booksellers' Record records a total of 11,004 books as having been published in the United Kingdom during the year 1920. This is an increase of 2,382 compared with the total for 1919, and brings British publishing (so far as the number of items is concerned) almost back to the pre-war level. In view of the enormously increased production costs this phenomenal recovery must be considered very satisfactory.

Further, it will be seen from the table that the greater part of the increase has taken place on "new books," which have risen by 1,529. "New editions" have increased by 971.

An examination of the table will reveal the classes of literature chiefly responsible for the increase. The rise in Fiction (+887) is exceptionally large, tho it may be viewed with apprehension by some. These may glean some comfort from the increases in Description and Travel (+225), Juvenile (+206), Science (+163), History (+103), and Law (+102), as well as from the smaller increases in practically all other classes. Religion, on the other hand, has suffered an unaccountable relapse (-87), and there are very small decreases in Education and Agriculture.

The classified totals furnish a rough indication of the attention bestowed by the public upon the various classes of literature, and it is interesting to compare the order in which these appear this year and in 1914:

1914	1920
(1) Fiction	(1) Fiction
(2) Religion	(2) Sociology
(3) Science	(3) Juvenile
(4) Sociology	(4) Technology
(5) Technology	(5) Religion
(6) Poetry	(6) Science
(7) Juvenile	(7) Poetry
(8) Description	(8) History
(9) Literature	(9) Medicine
(10) History	(10) Description
(10) Medicine	(11) Biography
(11) Biography	(12) Literature
(12) Military and Naval

The following totals for the last ten years are also of considerable interest:

Year.	New books.	New editions.	Total.
1911 ...	8,530 ...	2,384 ...	10,914
1912 ...	9,197 ...	2,870 ...	12,067
1913 ...	9,541 ...	2,838 ...	12,379
1914 ...	8,863 ...	2,674 ...	11,537
1915 ...	8,499 ...	2,166 ...	10,665

1919 ...	7,327 ...	1,295 ...	8,622
1920 ...	8,738 ...	2,266 ...	11,004

The monthly table shows three well-marked periods of activity. The old spring publishing season came back to its own, but divided into two periods, with March and June as their respective centers. The autumn season is becoming still more prominent, as was noted last year.

In the appended analytical tables, it should be noted that "Education" includes only books about educational theory and practice, and not text-books on special subjects which are classed under their subjects; and that all publications of 48 pages or less are counted as "pamphlets." It would be possible to swell the totals to an enormous extent by counting all kinds of printed matter (such as ephemeral pamphlets and leaflets, local government publications, musical texts, etc.), but the purpose of this table is to represent the book publishing activity of Great Britain. This should be noted in comparing the figures with those of other countries, in some of which single copies of newspapers are counted separately. In these tables each complete publication is counted as one, whether it is in one or more volumes. Serials that appear later as a collected volume are counted as an ordinary book on the appearance of that volume; so that, for example, the series of "Statutory Rules and Orders" issued by the Government, and amounting to hundreds in the year, are counted as one item on the appearance of the annual collected volume.

Dramatists Protest

THE Actors' Equity Association has recently proposed to put in operation a closed shop in the theatrical field for what it deems a necessary protection of the actors' interest. The dramatists, acting thru the Dramatists' Guild of the Authors' League of America, see in this action a very unfortunate situation from their point of view, and they have registered a strong protest. They believe that it would work to the disadvantage of good play-writing in America, because no play could be produced unless cast from the members of the Actors' Equity Association. This would make the writer always conscious of the need of getting the views of the Actors' Council, which would not be likely to breed independent thought and construction.

They believe it would also place too much power in that large section of the Actors' Association membership which never appears in metropolitan theaters, a power not commensurate with the true value of the theater. They believe that the interests and rights of the dramatists in the American theater are fully equal to those of the actor or manager, and they propose to use organized power to fight any such action as is suggested by the actors.

Loot Restored

SIX years after her soldiers sacked Belgium, Germany has begun to restore the loot taken from the library of Louvain. This reparation was under the reparation clause of the Treaty of Versailles. One carload of treasures has been returned, and a carload a month is to be returned until the library has been rehabilitated. Of course, many of the library's priceless treasures are gone forever.

International Statistics of Book and Periodical Production

Condensed from data compiled by Le Droit D'Auteur

THE book production statistics for 1919, says Le Droit D'Auteur, in its annual international review, Dec. 15, 1920, at a superficial glance, do not appear too depressing. In six countries there was a revival of publishing activity, especially noticeable is Germany, France, and Great Britain. The decrease in the United States seems due to the belated effects of the war, and that in Switzerland, to a temporary condition.

Appearances, however, are rather deceitful. In all the countries, new editions and impressions have increased while new publications have moved slowly. Pamphlets, the signs of troublous times, have increased. Writers have not been lacking in initiative, and publishers have not hesitated to follow them. But have they not been too confident?

A reaction is underway. The difficulty is not so much a question of the creation of books as of their sale. And this crisis, in book affairs due to the increase in price which has gone hand in hand with inferiority and difficulties of exportation, will soon check both the sale and the production of books. May we prove poor prophets!

[Le Droit D'Auteur quotes the latest available figures, generally for 1919. Statistics for 1920 for the United States and Great Britain are quoted elsewhere in this issue.]

The figures for 1919 increased by 1299 over 1918: books by 877, music by 426, while engravings remained the same.

The detailed statistical table from the Bibliographie de la France for 1919 shows an increase of 887 titles over that of 1918. Totals for the past decade from the same source are seen in the table below. [Serials or books published in parts, almanacs, and separate volumes of the same work are not counted separately.]

Year	Publications	Year	Publications

1913	10,758	1918	4,284
1914	8,511	1919	5,171

In classes the production was as follows:

	1918	1919
Sociology and economics	1,002	1,233
Education	458	535
Religion	389	410
Historical sciences	808	988

Total	4,284	5,171

War books included in 1919 under the heading of History numbered 137 (1918, 207). There were increases in all classes. Among the books in foreign languages, which increased by 16, those in English were most numerous and even went ahead of before-the-war figures (1913, 34, then 23, 21, 14, 16, 63 and 90). Spanish books which have decreased come next (134, 127, 28, 25, 45, 30, 28); then books in Malagash (28), in Annamese (16 fewer than last year) and in German (12).

GERMANY

BOOK PRODUCTION

Book production which began to decrease the first year of the war and reached its lowest in 1918, 14,743 books against 35,078 in 1913, showed a considerable increase in 1919, 26,194 publications in the German language. The figures for the past decade follow:

1910:	31,281	1915:	23,558
1911:	32,998	1916:	22,020
1912:	34,801	1917:	14,910
1913:	35,078	1918:	14,743
1914:	29,308	1919:	26,194

The figures for 1919 in the classified table which follows are from the semi-annual lists of the Börsenblatt. With the exception of Military science, which has a loss of only one, all classes show gains, one of 100% (Science of law) and in one case of nearly 300% (Geography, maps). Science of law gained 2233; Belles-lettres, 1380; Education, 1129; Business, 967; Geography, 576; Miscellaneous, 557; Natural science, 484; Bibliography, 484; Theology, 480; Juveniles, 465; Medicine, 463; Fine arts, 424; Domestic economy, 402; Architecture, 382; Philology, 321; History, 257; Philosophy, 249; Writings of student societies, 125:

Commerce, Communication, Manufactures	532	1,499
Architecture, Engineering, Mining	349	731
Domestic economy, agriculture, forestry	385	787
Belles-lettres	3,071	5,051
Juveniles	551	1,016
Fine arts, Music, Theater	409	833
Student societies, Sports	36	161
Directories, Annuals, Almanacs	525
Miscellaneous	221	778
Total	14,743	26,194

The total is made up as follows: new books, 15,876 (1917: 11,639; 1918: 10,417) new editions, 6432 (1917: 3271; 1918: 4326) and 3886 periodicals. What periodicals are included is not known. The figure is too small to include all and too large to be applied only to new periodicals. Here is an example of the inflation of figures. The proportion of new editions to new publications is very large and cannot be explained as last year by the depletion of stock. These 15,876 new editions show great publishing activity not reconcilable with the complaints of hard times. It is possible, however, that these works are published at an absolute loss. This apparently contradictory phenomenon cannot be interpreted for a number of years. The fact remains that 16,000 new publications in a year is the largest figure that any country has contributed to the world's literary production.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF DISSERTATIONS

The current bibliography of dissertations and academic writings is taken as usual from the monthly Bibliographischer Monatsbericht, published by the firm of Gustave Fock at Leipzig:

	1918-19	1919-20
Classical philology and archeology	63	62
Modern philology, Modern languages and literature	90	128
Oriental languages, Comparative linguistics	35	29
Theology	45	23
Philosophy, Psychology	26	71
Pedagogy	5	22
History and auxiliary sciences	12	104
Geography, Travel, Anthropology
Ethnography	6	16
Law, Economics	272	915
Medicine	524	1749
Natural sciences: Zoology, Botany, Geology, Mineralogy	129	180
Exact sciences: Mathematics, Physics, Astronomy, Meteorology	129	180
Chemistry	66	199
Technical and Commercial sciences	44	89
Agriculture, Forestry, Animal husbandry	8	15
Decorative Arts	10	42
Music	5	7
Miscellaneous, Library economy	4	8
Total	1412	3766

Except in three classes the above table reveals increases especially noticeable in medicine (+1225) and law and political science (+643). Last year the greatest losses were in just these classes. We attributed this to the fact that 1918 being the year of great battles the presence of medical students was indispensable in ambulances and hospitals and lawyers and students of political science were in the army. This supposition has been verified, for just as soon as they were demobilized students, in spite of the enormous increase in printing which keeps many theses still in manuscript form, presented their dissertations, in reduced numbers, to be sure, and the total of 1412 for 1918 rose to 3766 for 1919, an increase of more than 150%.

PERIODICAL PRODUCTION

The number of periodical accessions to the National Library is still unknown. During the war 140 periodicals were discontinued, and in 1919, 32 others. [Le Droit D'Auteur comments that this decrease is not altogether a misfortune as much effort was wasted thru lack of co-operation in periodical as well as book publication.] The total figures for periodical publication for 1919 are not available. A work by Gérard Muser, "Statistische Untersuchung über die Zeitungen Deutschlands, 1885 bis 1914," gives the latest statistics.

GERMAN BOOK-TRADE STATISTICS

In spite of hard times, according to the official directory of the German book-trade, Adressbuch des Deutschen Buchhandels, the number of firms increased in 1919 (12,475 against 12,240 in 1918, or 235 more). Of these 3262 (3230) were publishing firms and 7426 (7272) were general booksellers.

HOLLAND

As in former years Le Droit d'Auteur has counted the publications listed in the first part of the annual catalog of A. W. Sijthoff at Leyden, Brinkman's Alfabetische van Boeken, Landkaarten, etc., the bibliographical authority of Holland.

Total .....	3681	3746

The increase for the year is 65. The book production has not varied greatly from 1909 to 1918 except in 1914 when there was the depression caused by the war and in 1917 when it attained the highest figure. The table below gives the figures for the past ten years:

Year	Publications	Year	Publications
1910	3777	1915	3701
1911	3673	1916	3762
1912	3799	1917	3951
1913	3831	1918	3681
1914	3453	1919	3746

[After commenting on the gains and losses in the different classes Le Droit d'Auteur points out that the statistics of Holland are the most uniform of all, the changes from one year to another forming a series of simple undulations.]

ITALY

Le Droit d'Auteur presents no Italian book production statistics for 1919, but gives the following figures for periodicals taken from the Giornale della Libreria of November 8, 1920:

Daily political papers .....	137
Political papers not dailies .....	656
Religion .....	866
Political economy, Finance, Administration ..	457
Business .....	217
Science, Literature .....	212
Political science .....	198
Domestic economy .....	162
Agriculture .....	156
Medicine, Hygiene .....	145

Wit, Humor .....	55
Bibliography, Universities .....	45
Fine arts, music .....	45
Fashion .....	23
Philology .....	20
Philosophy .....	8
Total .....	3879

The enormous increase in religious periodicals, even greater than that of political papers, and the diminishing number of educational papers are the most noticeable features of the periodical output.

LUXEMBURG

The book production statistics for Luxembourg given below are furnished by Tony Kellen, of Hohenheim near Stuttgart and based upon figures from the monthly review, Oms Hemecht (Our Country) published at Luxembourg.

	1918	1919
Trade books and pamphlets .....	76	55
Reprints from papers and magazines .....	20	22
Government and society publications .....	42	48
Books by Luxembourg authors and books about Luxembourg issued in foreign countries .....	8	10
Privately printed books .....	3	2

There are almost no trade books, says Mr. Kellen; the greater part of the 55 items being small plays and books for students. Periodicals, with the enormous increase in the cost of printing, are diminishing in size. Six new ones have been issued, however, 3 in German, 1 in French, 8 in Franco-German and 1 in English.

PORTUGUAL

E. Navarro Salvador, publicist and statistician of Madrid, furnishes the official statistics for Portugal as well as for Spain. The works deposited at the National Library of Lisbon numbered 1044 classified as follows:

Books .....	425
Pamphlets .....	607
Musical Works .....	3
Prints .....	5
Drawings .....	—
Maps .....	4

It is hoped that the book statistics for Portugal now available for the first time, will be kept with greater detail for future comparative deductions.

SPAIN

BOOK PRODUCTION

E. Navarro Salvador, supplies the data for the following statistical tables. The figures in the first two columns are from the Bibliografia Espanola, the official organ of the Spanish book-trade, and represent actual trade books exclusive of pamphlets, reports, dissertations, official and gratuitous publications; those in the next columns are obtained from deposits required of printers for every work turned out from their establishments:

Year	Trade Books.		Publications deposited by Printers.
	Books	Music	Books	Pamphlets	Prints	Maps
1910	2507	78	3438	3557	60	32
1911	2876	185	3232	4051	41	19
1912	2618	125	4810	4007	36	9
1913	2237	226	3652	3025	54	14
1914	1591	114	3995	4019	45	17
1915	1585	—	4832	4131	50	29

1918	1219	82	3620	4021	25	11
1919	1305	99	3753	4024	10	12

The 1404 works indicated in the first column cannot be classified by subject matter for lack of the publication of the general index of the Bibliografia Espanola. The following table from the copyright registrations of 1919 is, however, available:

Books .....	2120
Pamphlets .....	610
Music .....	175
Prints .....	30
Drawings .....	17
Maps .....	12

Total .....2964

These figures compared with those of 1916 (1477 deposits) show a considerable increase. They are far from including the complete production; almost two-thirds (61%) of this total of 2964 deposits come from Madrid with its central university, while Barcelona another intellectual and publishing center is represented by only 21%; Valencia contributes only 3%; Seville 2% and Saragossa and Bilbao 1%.

E. Navarro Salvador also offers another source of bibliographical information in the Bibliografia, published in Barcelona. The figures obtained from this review are for 16 months, including 1919 and the first four months of 1920:

Bibliography, Encyclopedias, Catalogs .....	16
Philosophy, Religion .....	133
Instruction, Education, Books for Students.....	81
Political and social sciences .....	167
Law .....	123
Philology, Linguistics .....	36

Fiction .....	521
Drama .....	162
Miscellaneous .....	148
Criticism, History of literature .....	49
Geography, History, World War .....	13

Total .....2023

To this should be added 103 musical works. These statistics include also books in the Spanish languages published in other countries.

IMPORTATIONS AND EXPORTATIONS

Mr. Salvador also furnishes the following figures for imports and exports of Spanish books. The figures indicate the weight in kilograms:

SWITZERLAND

The statistics of book production for Switzerland are again obtained from the report presented by the Swiss National Library. The works published abroad by Swiss authors including some by foreigners on Switzerland numbered 1916: 271; 1917: 224; 1918: 156; 1919: 215. Swiss book production, on the other hand, declined after the increases of 1917 and 1918 (1916: 1583; 1917: 1720; 1918: 1764; 1919: 1626 not including publications outside of the trade such as reports and official documents).

The classified table follows:

BOOKS PUBLISHED IN SWITZERLAND

In 1918, 42 and in 1919, 77 new reviews and periodicals were issued in Switzerland.

The Best Short Stories of 1920✓

THE sixth volume of Edward J. O'Brien's annual volumes, "The Best Short Stories" (Small Maynard) which will appraise the stories of 1920 has not as yet appeared, so we do not know what twenty stories have been marked for distinction. There is a clue in the annual article which appears in the Boston Transcript, for all the "three asterisk" stories, the stories of high merit, from which the best twenty are chosen, are listed there. In this Transcript article, Mr. O'Brien discusses the basis of his selection of stories. "The fight for sincerity in the short story is a fight worth making. It is at the heart of all that for which I am striving. The quiet sincere man who has something to tell you should not be talked down by the noisemakers. He should have his hearing. He is real. And we need him."

"That is why I have set myself the annual task of reading so many short stories. I am looking for the man and woman with something to say who cares very much indeed about how he says it. I am looking for the man and woman with some sort of a dream, the man or woman who sees just a little bit more in the pedlar he passes on the street than you or I do, and who wishes to devote his life to telling us about it; I want to be told my own story, too, so that I can see myself as other people see me, and I want to feel that the storyteller who talks to me about these things is as much in earnest as a sincere clergyman, an unselfish physician, or an idealistic lawyer. I want to feel that he belongs to a profession that is a sort of priesthood, and not that he is holding down a job or running a bucket shop."

The following tables indicate the rank, during the period between October, 1919, and September, 1920, inclusive, by number and percentage of distinctive stories published, of the twenty-one periodicals coming within the scope of Mr. O'Brien's examination, periodicals which have published an average of 15 per cent in stories of distinction. The lists include reprints, but not translations.

The Poetry of 1920

WILLIAM Stanley Braithwaite, in the introductory essay to "Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1920" (Small, Maynard), writes of the characteristic quality of American poetry as distinguished from the poetry of England or that of any other nation. "Where are our poets to find some such stout tap-root of memory and knowledge as Thomas Hardy follows deep sown to the primal rock of England?" he asks. "The answer is that for the present we are not to find it. We possess no such commodity. Our literature for generations, perhaps centuries, will have to be symbolized by the melting pot, not by the tap-root. Our geographical is also our spiritual destiny. The old idea of America-making in its absurd ignorance demanded that each wave of newcomers be straightway melted down into the national pot and that the resultant mass be as simply Anglo-Saxon as ever. This was bad chemistry. What has happened, and what is now happening more than ever, is that of a dozen—a hundred—nationalities thrown in, each lends a peculiar color and quality. Arturo Giovannitti gives something that Robert Frost could not give; Carl Sandburg something not to be looked for from Edwin Arlington Robinson; James Oppenheim and Alter Brody what would not come from Indiana or Kansas. Such fusion, of course, takes a long time."

When Mr. Braithwaite published in the Boston Transcript, his annual summary and review (an annual feature page which is an older institution than the annual anthology) he gave particular attention to a few volumes of poetry:—As for the books of the year Mr. Edwin Arlington Robinson takes the lead with two volumes, "Lancelot" and "The Three Taverns," the first the high-water mark of his career for sheer beauty, the second, for thought and substance. Miss Amy Lowell's "Pictures of the Floating World" stands at the head of those "tendencies" which she has so ably expounded in her critical interpretations. Mr. John Hall Wheelock's "Dust and Light," Clement Wood's "The Earth Turns South," Sara Teasdale's "Flame and Shadow," William Rose Benét's "Moons of Grandeur," Gladys Cromwell's "Poems," Conrad Aiken's "The House of Dust" and Edgar Lee Masters' "Starved Rock" are the best volumes of the year. To these there are two volumes by new writers that might be added because they are accomplishments that promise their authors in the future a place in the high company already named. These are "The Hesitant Heart" by Winifred Welles and "Tomorrow's Yesterday" by Ernest Beshimol. The book about poetry that has first attention is Bliss Perry's "A Study of Poetry."

The magazines which have published the greatest number of distinguished poems during the year, according to Mr. Braithwaite, are Poetry, A Magazine of Verse, Contemporary Verse, Harper's, Century, Scribner's,

The New Republic, The Bookman, The Yale Review, The Outlook, The Nation, The Dial, Ainslee's, North American Review.

"Books are not made for furniture, but there is nothing that so beautifully furnishes a house. A little library, growing each year, is an honorable part of a man's history. It is a man's duty to have books. A library is not a luxury, but one of the necessities of life."—Henry Ward Beecher.

"To add a library to a house is to give that house a soul."—Cicero.

"Many times the reading of a book has made the future of a man."—Emerson.

"If a book is worth reading, it is worth buying."—Ruskin.

"A book may be as great a thing as a battle."—Disraeli.

"There is more reason for saying grace before a new book than before a dinner."—Charles Lamb.

"What is a book? A series of little printed signs, essentially only that. It is for the reader to supply himself the forms and colors and sentiments to which these signs correspond. It will depend on him whether the book be dull or brilliant, hot with passion or cold as ice. Or, if you prefer to put it otherwise, each word in a book is a magic finger that sets a fibre of our brain vibrating like a harp-string, and so evokes a note from the sounding board of our soul."—Anatole France.

Copyright Report for the Fiscal Year 1919-20

By Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights

Copyright Entries and Fees

THE registrations for the fiscal year numbered 126,562. Of these, 119,007 were registrations at $1 each, including a certificate and 5443 were registrations of photographs without certificates at 50 cents each. There were also 2112 registrations of renewals at 50 cents each. The fees for these registrations amounted to a total of $122,784.50.

Copyright Deposits

The total number of separate articles deposited in compliance with the copyright law, which have been registered, stamped, indexed and cataloged, during the fiscal year is 213,149.

It is not possible to determine exactly how completely the works which claim copyright are deposited; but as title cards are printed and supplied upon request to other libraries for all books received bearing United States notice of copyright, the demand for such cards for works not received furnishes some indication of possible percentage of failure to deposit.

In response to inquiries received during the year from the Card Division, the Order Division, and the Reading Room in regard to 580 books supposed to have been copyrighted but not discovered in the Library, it was found that 47 of these works had been received and were actually in the Library, 84 books had been deposited and were still in the Copyright Office, 69 works were either not published, did not claim copyright, or for other valid reasons could not be deposited, while in the case of 184 works no answers to our letters of inquiry had been received up to June 30, 1920. Copies were received of 196 works in all in response to requests made by the Copyright Office during the period of 12 months for the works published in recent years.

The total copyright deposits for the year included:

Printed volumes .....	18,156
Pamphlets and leaflets .....	30,638
Newspapers and magazines .....	57,870
Dramas .....	3,063
Pieces of music .....	44,566
Maps .....	3,026
Photographs .....	13,274
Prints .....	15,193
Motion pictures .....	8,038
Contributions to periodicals .....	13,692
Works of art and drawings .....	3,491
Lectures .....	216

These were all produced in the United States. From abroad there were received 1,485 books in foreign languages and 441 books in English.

The total number of articles deposited during the period from July 1, 1897 (when the Copyright Office was reorganized), to June 30, 1920, was nearly four and a half million (4,426,091), out of which nearly one and one-half million articles have been disposed of, still leaving approximately three million articles on our shelves. These are in addition to the uncounted accumulation of articles deposited from 1870 to 1897. This great collection of books, pamphlets, leaflets, music, photographs, prints, and other articles, which are of no use to the Library of Congress, occupies shelf space which it is increasingly embarrassing to spare for this purpose. It has been demonstrated during the last twenty years that there is little likelihood of any calls for the examination or other use of any of this material, and no demand is known to have occurred which could not be met by reference to the copies upon the shelves of the Library.

Catalogs

The printing of the Catalog of Copyright Entries was continued in accordance with the provisions of the copyright law. It is compiled from cards which subsequently become part of the permanent card indexes essential to the conduct of the office business. These indexes now contain considerably over 3,000,000 cards. During the year 206,307 cards were written, prepared for printer's copy for the Catalog, the proof therefrom was read and revised, and the cards were then filed in the permanent indexes. Copyright applications to the number of 126,562 were headlined to indicate the names of the claimants of copyright and titles of the works and filed in our permanent application files, which serve as proprietor indexes to all copyright entries made since 1909.

During the calendar year 1919, 131 numbers of Part I, Group 1, of the Catalog were published, containing the book titles, with complete record for all renewals for books, and complete annual index, 1022 plus 248 pages; 12 monthly numbers of Part 1, Group 2, containing titles of pamphlets, contributions to newspapers, lectures, dramatic compositions, maps, and motion pictures, and a complete annual index, 1802 closely printed pages; 4 quarterly numbers of Part 2, containing all registrations for newspapers and magazines, with annual index, 408 pages; 12 monthly numbers of Part 3, musical compositions, with complete list of renewals for music and lists of music used or licensed to be used for mechanical reproduction, together with complete annual index, 2238 compactly printed pages; and 4 quarterly numbers of Part 4, containing registrations of works of art and photographs and prints, with annual index, 417 pages.

The continued shortage of paper and the urgent demand for economy in its use have made it necessary to cease publishing the monthly indexes to the Catalog of Copyright Entries for 1920. This temporary inconvenience to the users of the Catalog will be remedied by the Annual Indexes which will be printed as usual making the sets complete for future reference.

Two Copyright Office bulletins were reprinted during the year: Bulletin No. 14 containing the copyright laws, and Bulletin No. 15 "Rules and Regulations for the registration of claims to copyright," both revised to date. There was also printed as a single-sheet circular the new copyright act of December 18, 1919.

Legislation

In my last year's report attention was called to the bill H. R. 3754, which had been passed by the House of Representatives on July 23, 1919. It was reported to the Senate and passed on December 8, 1919,<sup>1</sup> and was approved by the President on December 18, 1919.<sup>2</sup> The purpose of the act is to secure retrospective protection in the United States for books by foreign authors published during the war but not protected in the United States because of conditions growing out of the war. The act amends sections 8 and 21 of the copyright statute of March 4, 1909, and reads in part as follows:

Provided, however, That all works made the subject of copyright by the laws of the United States first produced or published abroad after August 1, 1914, and before the date of the President's proclamation of peace, of which the authors or proprietors are citizens or subjects of any foreign State or nation granting similar protection for works by citizens of the United States, the existence of which shall be determined by a copyright proclamation issued by the President of the United States, shall be entitled to the protection conferred by the copyright laws of the United States from and after the accomplishment, before the expiration of fifteen months after the date of the President's proclamation of peace, of the conditions and formalities prescribed with respect to such works by the copyright laws of the United States: Provided, further, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive any person of any right which he may have acquired by the republication of such foreign work in the United States prior to the approval of this Act.

The required "similar protection for works by citizens of the United States" was granted by Great Britain by an Order in Council of February 9, 1920, and was met by the President's proclamation of April 10, 1920, extending to subjects of Great Britain and the British Dominions, Colonies, and Possessions, with the exception of the self-governing dominions of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Newfoundland, all the benefits of the copyright act of March 4, 1909, and the acts amendatory thereof, for all of their works first published in Great Britain after August 1, 1914, and before the President's proclamation of peace.

On January 23, 1920, Hon. William W. Venable introduced a bill<sup>3</sup> to provide copyright in educational games. No action by Congress has followed.

A public printing bill was again introduced on August 9, 1919, by Hon. Edgar R. Kiess, which contains the clause providing that "no Government publication or any portion thereof shall be copyrighted." The bill was favorably reported on August 12<sup>4</sup> and passed the House of Representatives on August 13; on August 15<sup>5</sup> it was referred to the Senate Committee on Printing. The House report explains that the bill "continues the present prohibition against the copyrighting of Government publications." No further action on the bill is recorded.

International Copyright

The passing of the act of December 18, 1919, and the arrangement with the British Government to secure similar protection in Great Britain for American books published during the war are the only steps to be chronicled for the year in relation to international copyright. This arrangement for reciprocal protection should prove of practical benefit to all American authors who have published books during the war; to American publishers who have an interest in these works; to British authors whose works published during the war may still be profitably reprinted in this country, and to the American publishers who may find it advantageous to reprint in the United States such books by British authors. If similar arrangements are made with other countries, as seems probable, the benefits secured by the act of 1919 will be extended to a wider range of works, especially to many interesting and valuable books relating to the war.

The act of 1919, however, is only temporary in its effects and offers no remedy for the acutely unsatisfactory copyright relations between the United States and Great Britain, Canada, and Australia. The present unequal and inadequate exchange of literary-property protection is a matter of nearly 30 years' standing and requires radical change in order to effect satisfactory solution. There seems to be a general agreement that the fundamental obstacle to a better arrangement is the requirement of American manufacture of books and prints. It is generally agreed that copyright protection should not be subject to this kind of condition. It is the principal obstacle to entry by the United States into the International Copyright Union. The desire has been expressed that the United States should become a member of this union. To do so, however, would require not only the abrogation of the type-setting clause, so far as foreign books are concerned, but the abolition as well of the necessity for deposit of copies and registration. American book publishers believe that an accessible, official registration in the United States of all works in which copyright is claimed is desirable for their business interests. By express provision of law the present certificate of copyright registration is required to be "admitted in any court as prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein"; and this is a great convenience. So far, also, as books, music, and prints deposited in the Copyright Office are added to the collections of the Library of Congress, their use therein advertises the existence of such works, and the copyright proprietor receives the advantages which may come from the distribution to some 2500 libraries of the printed title cards for copyrighted books.

Possibly some middle course might be adopted for foreign books; e. g., the substitution for the deposit of copies for registration of some arrangement for the regular and systematic filing in the Copyright Office of the printed bibliographical records of works published in foreign countries, and the preservation and indexing of such foreign book catalogs in this office. The information thus made available to American publishers might be sufficient for their needs. So far as American copyright works are concerned, the Catalog of Copyright Entries now compiled and printed under provisions of law supplies a complete, well arranged and indexed record of all works copyrighted in the United States and the current issues of this catalog could be supplied to offices in other countries.

If some such arrangement could be substituted for the present requirement of deposit of copies and formal registration of books by foreign authors printed abroad, and the manufacturing conditions of the copyright statute of March 4, 1909, be abrogated, at least so far as foreign works are concerned, the United States might enter the International Copyright Union. If something of this kind can not be agreed upon, special arrangements should be entered into with the English-speaking countries expressly to guarantee full protection in all these countries for the works of authors, playwrights, composers, and artists (who are citizens or subjects of any one of them) from the date of the production or first publication of such works in any one of the countries.

This assured protection for all intellectual works thruout all the English-speaking and reading nations should be free of any technical or merely formal requirements, except such as are mutually agreed upon as desirable.

The retirement of Mr. Arthur Crisfield as the Assistant Register of Copyrights, with a pension under the provision of the new retirement act, calls for some words of special notice. Mr. Crisfield has been associated with the Library of Congress for more than 30 years, and during that whole period has been connected with the copyright work. It has been a service noticeable in several ways. In the first place, his record for attendance is unusual. He was not absent on account of illness at all during the first 25 years of his connection with the Library, and since then only for a few days each year, except during the last few years. In the second place, his has been a service of distinct value and usefulness, and in the third place, his uniform courtesy, helpfulness, and fair-mindedness have been of so fine a character that they have endeared him to each and all of the members of the Copyright Office force. He has recently passed the eightieth anniversary of his birthday, and leaves the office in such good health that his friends can hope that he may have many years before him in which to enjoy his freedom from the obligation of hours and places; with leisure to read, to travel, and to enjoy the society of his friends. He carries with him the best wishes of each member of the Copyright Office.

To Make Paper From Kelp

A PLANT for the manufacture of wall board, heavy paper, roofing, and cardboard, all from kelp, is to be erected at Summerland, California, says The Paper Trade Journal. The Occidental Chemical Company, which manufactured potash from kelp during the war, is to erect the plant. For some time experiments in the making of paper products from kelp have been in progress and now are declared to be successful. Representatives of the Occidental say one of the largest paper companies in the country has been following the experiments and may take over all the Occidental's interests.

It is said that the success of the venture will do much to solve the country's paper shortage, as the immense beds of kelp along the Santa Barbara coast and around the channel islands, beds that are perpetually renewed, will afford an inexhaustible supply of paper-making material, while fuel oil is obtainable from the ocean bed at Summerland.

"READ BOOKS for enjoyment, for mental recreation, for practical help, for spiritual tonic, for the bettering of whole man, and buy them because they provide more in all these lines than any other purchase at the same price."

—E. P. Street, Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York City, in New Era Magazine.

Dutton & Company, 18 volumes; the Funk & Wagnalls Company, 4 volumes; B. W. Huebsch, 1 volume; the John Lane Company, 42 volumes; Longmans, Green & Company, 2 volumes; Plon-Nourrit & Cie, 16 volumes; G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1 volume; the Frederick A. Stokes Company, 9 volumes; and Frederick Warne & Company, 2 volumes.

Interesting examples of writings that served for the instruction or diversion of young people in America a hundred years or more are afforded by a collection that was secured of old-fashioned books for children. Most of the volumes are of the early nineteenth century, while some are of the latter part of the eighteenth century. Often of diminutive size, perhaps never provided with covers, or else provided with covers of wood, or of wall papers of various hues, or of cloth of sober tint, illustrated with cuts of type metal, or wood, or copperplate, the pictures sometimes in color, these books are quaint both in appearance and content. They are, however, among the antecedents of a real literature for children and have value as well in the history of education. Also, with these books, are several of the earliest periodicals intended for children. The collection as a whole contains about 200 titles.

The following editions of the New England Primer have been added: Boston, Thomas Hall, 1795; New England, printed for the purchaser, circa 1798; Boston, Manning and Loring, circa 1803; Massachusetts, printed for the purchaser, 1812; Haverhill, 1812; Concord, N. H., 1813; Norwich, Conn., 1816; Amherst, 1823.

Division of Manuscripts

The Division of Manuscripts has continued to be the working place of writers of American history and the storehouse from which their materials are drawn. President Roosevelt's letters, now being published in Scribner's Magazine, are taken from the collection he placed in the Library, and writers at work on the administrations of two other Presidents have been made welcome to the abundant resources of the Division.

During the year the already large collection of the papers of President Taft has been doubled in extent. There are copies of letters sent; the originals of letters received; reports on special subjects, notably on the pioneer administrative work in the Philippines and on the Panama Canal; photographs of persons, groups, scenes, and occasions; newspaper cartoons, both prints and originals, and other like things. All this mass of material has been gone over carefully. The personal letters and belongings have been taken out and returned to Mr. Taft, the letter books and cases of carbons have been placed on shelves according to dates, and the letters received have been calendared for consultation. The pictures have been labeled and arranged chronologically. The division prefers to have collections sent intact. Only persons accustomed to handling historical papers can discriminate between what are valuable and what are not. Strictly private papers are not wanted and are returned promptly. The Taft papers are not open to consultation at present, nor are the Roosevelt papers; but both collections belong to the Library of Congress and are potentially at the service of historians. They are safe from fire and theft, and they can be used conveniently by persons properly authorized so to do.

The Grover Cleveland papers have been added to by the purchase of 30 letters of President Cleveland to Capt. (afterwards Rear Admiral) Robley D. Evans. The correspondence is of high personal value.

Washington and Franklin papers of more than ordinary historical interest have been acquired by purchase. The Washington documents relate to western land holdings, which he acquired thru the land-bounty grants by the Dunmore proclamation of 1754 for military services during the French and Indian War. They include the autograph draft, signed, of his letter to Lord Botetourt, December 8, 1769; the petition of December 15, 1769, for himself and others, on the subject of the land bounties; his expense account, 1769-1774, in managing the land business for himself and the Virginia officers, together with lists of his western lands, made out in 1794 and 1798; and a folio page of his observations on the navigation of the Potomac River, drawn up in 1754. All of these manuscripts are in Washington's handwriting and have not been published.

The ten Franklin letters were written to Miss Polly Stevenson, and date from 1760 to 1779. They are autograph drafts and original letters as sent, and they dealt with scientific and personal matters. Franklin explains to her the principles and discusses various physical phenomena, such as air currents, fire, water and tides, and gives friendly advice in matters of a personal nature, when Miss Stevenson appealed to him for assistance. As a small group of Franklin letters, they are rich in sentiment and high in historical value, and it is doubtful if another opportunity to acquire such a collection of Franklin letters will present itself for years.

Various miscellaneous letters were obtained at the same sale which go to increase the historical value of our other collections, such as the Richard Henry Lee, Henry Clay, Gideon Granger, Ebenezer Hazard, and James Monroe papers.

In all the long-established departments there is certain material primarily of historical value which may be properly transferred to the Library and thus made available to students of American history. Because of changes of administration in the departments, the fact that there is authority of law for such transfers to the Library of Congress has to be called to the attention of officials frequently. On the other hand, it is even more necessary to call the attention of Government officials to the fact that even the head of a department subjects himself to severe penalties by giving Government archives to State societies, even where the interest in such papers appears to be largely local. During the year a historical writer, working on the Jackson epoch, sought for a certain document of high value to the history of that period, only to find that, in violation of law, it had been given by Washington authorities to a State historical society, which extolled the value of the gift and praised the unconscious lawbreakers thruout two newspaper columns.

The Library has acquired an original signed letter of Hernando Cortez, the conqueror of Mexico.

The Library has received, as a gift from William B. Chilton, of Washington, D. C., three diaries of Lieut. Theodore Talbot, First United States Artillery, 1843-1850; four letters to his mother (one 1849 and three from Fort Moultrie and Fort Sumter, in November and December, 1860); and his report of his explorations of the Alcea River, Oregon, in 1849. Lieut. Talbot traveled with Frémont on the 1843 expedition to explore the Oregon Trail. This diary covers the period from April 29 to October 13, 1843. Starting from St. Louis, Frémont left the Talbot party toward the end of July, in the effort to find a straight route, a "bee line," to Fort Hall, Idaho. Talbot continued by way of the South Pass and Fort Laramie. October 13, when the diary ends, the difficult and dangerous part of the trip was over, Frémont was but four days' journey ahead of Talbot, and both parties were within reach of Fort Hall.

Two gifts of first importance to the history of the District of Columbia have been made. The late Dr. James Dudley Morgan bequeathed to the Library of Congress his collection of letters and papers relating to the beginnings of the National Capital. The collection is to be known as the Digges-L'Enfant Morgan Papers. Pierre Charles L'Enfant was born in or near Paris in 1754. With other young French officers he came to this country to fight in the Revolution; he was severely wounded while leading an attack on Savannah and later was captured at Charleston. He was known personally and as an engineer by Washington, Lafayette, and the French officers; after peace came, L'Enfant altered the New York City Hall and designed a house for Robert Morris in Philadelphia; and, when Congress entrusted to President Washington the task of planning the permanent capital, L'Enfant applied to be appointed and was entrusted with the work. His plan is the basis of all that is noble in the design of Washington, and also the guide for future development. Hence the papers that embody his ideals have an increasing significance as the City of Washington develops as one of the great capitals of the world.

To the already large Sherman collection have been added the letters from Senator John Sherman to Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, 1847 to 1890, the gift of Philemon Tecumseh Sherman, Esq., of New York City, a son of Gen. Sherman; and also a long letter from John Sherman, reviewing the causes that led to his resignation from President McKinley's Cabinet. The latter was the gift of Mrs. Mary Sherman McCallum, of Washington, D. C.

Among the unique deposits of the year is a collection of 63 volumes and packets containing diaries and papers of Gen. Montgomery C. Meigs, covering the period 1849 to 1889. Gen. Meigs, alert, vigorous, resourceful, and aggressive, was in favor with President Lincoln during Civil War days; and his diaries, kept in shorthand, are revealing the inner working of affairs during the early days of uncertainty as to men and movements, as the notes are transcribed. The deposit was made by Montgomery Meigs, Esq., of Keokuk, Iowa, in conjunction with Mrs. J. H. Taylor.

From the literary executors of the estate of the late Charles Lang Freer, of Detroit (Mrs. A. H. Freer and Miss Katharine N. Rhoades), the Library has received a group of original manuscripts of Dante Gabriel Rossetti. There are 23 poems which were printed in his works, mostly in "The House of Life," and five that are not found in his collected works; two original autograph letters; numbers one and two of "The Germ" and three and four of "Art and Poetry." Of the omitted poems is the one "Sacred to the Memory of A— S—," written on both sides of four leaves of paper.

Another accession is a group of letters from Lydia Maria Child to John Greenleaf Whittier.

Peak of Printing Costs

THE printing business has seemingly reached the peak of its high costs, and consequently of high selling prices, and we may now look for a gradual reduction, says The Printing Art. This will be retarded to some extent by the demand for direct advertising that has grown very rapidly in the past few years and the fact that there is actually a shortage of paper and the material from which it can be made.

Those printers who are looking for and demanding a sharp decline in the price of paper and other materials used by the craft would be the first to cry out against a similar reduction in their own prices, but that is just what would happen.

There is no doubt that the next year or so will see material reductions, and that these will come without detriment to the trade, because they will come so slowly that we shall be able to adapt ourselves to the changes of slight degree, while violent change would result in the cancellation of orders in the hope of replacing them at lower figures, which would mean great hardship, if not bankruptcy, for the printers who were tied up with their paper contracts and added machinery.

One more point of importance to the printer and his customer. There will be an eventual return to normal in price; but that normal will not be the normal that existed before the war. In every case, as history proves, the prices that are considered normal after the full recovery from the orgy of spending and high prices that follows these great upheavals are higher than those which were previously considered normal.

There is a reason for this in the fact that the middle and working classes have been able to live better during the war time and are not willing to go back to the old standard. They have tasted the pleasures of better clothing, better dress, more amusements, and more pocket money, and only a panic will drive them to accept even temporarily the former lack of these improved conditions.

By carefully keeping their costs and by selling at a fair profit on the true costs, printers can do their share to hasten the day when prices will gracefully and harmlessly come down to the correct level. But remember that these will be higher than they were before the war, and that wages will remain high, tho in all probability much lower than at present, particularly in the big cities and in metropolitan centers where the increase has been the greatest, and where there has been the most need for it.

Books and the Working Class

HARRODS, the famous London department store has been having a book week, at which some notable speakers talked about books. On one occasion, Sir Arthur Spurgeon, of the publishing house of Cassells, talked about the love of the working class for books. "The greatest readers in this country at the present time belong to the manual workers class," he said.

He was inclined to think that books were far more widely read in the homes of lowly workers "than in the palaces of the great or the mansions of the rich." In this time of change and transition that was a very significant fact.

Sir Arthur quoted the following instances out of his own experience to illustrate democracy's devotion to reading:

I know of hundreds of men in South Wales who have put down six guineas for a Standard Dictionary.

A Labor leader in Sheffield sold 60 copies of the three guinea edition of Wells' "Outline of History" within a fortnight.

We printed 10,000 sets of "The World We Live In" (a geographical book in four volumes), and the whole of that edition was sold within twelve months.

Of "The Scientific History of the Universe," in ten books, 1,000 volumes were sold in a week in one working-class district in Lancashire and 2,000 sets in the valleys of South Wales.

Sir Arthur later stated that the number of new books published in 1913 was 12,397; in 1919 it was 8,622; while the output for 1920, in his belief, would be nearer 6,000. But there was always an opening for the book that was worth publishing.

"Never before has the world been in greater need of the new author," he said.

J. M. Dent, another famous publisher, in the course of an extremely interesting paper on books and their production, referred to those advocates of the French method of binding who were urging English publishers to resort to rude stitching and paper covers, with a view to cheaper books, "A very ugly economy," was Mr. Dent's comment. He argued that such a covering was not worthy of a book that had a message, that we wanted to read again and to lend to a friend.

"DEVELOPMENT of a mine means at last an abandoned hole and a desolate heap of tailings. Development of an oilwell has its final stage in rotting derrick and rusting pipe. But develop a great book—bring to light the riches of truth, the energies of inspiration, the charm of phrase and style; appropriate the wealth and power and joy of it; take it all into your life, and it remains in the book for the next discoverer."

—Dr. Gilbert N. Brink, General Secretary, American Baptist Publication Society, Philadelphia in New Era Magazine.

Keep Your Head and You Will Keep Your Business

BANKS will extend credit to the man who has faith in himself and in his business. Sentiment is contagious. Talk panic and you foster panic. Talk optimism and you inspire optimism. Keep your head and you stand a good chance of keeping your business. Lose your head and you are in danger of losing your business. Last New Year saw us soaring farther and farther away from economic sanity. This New Year sees us moving steadily nearer and nearer economic sanity. The wise business man looks not only to the conditions of the moment but tries to foresee the probable conditions of the morrow. The shortsighted are the most pessimistic today; the farsighted the most optimistic. Let us enter 1921 with characteristic American courage and faith and vision, with cool heads, clear eyes, stout hearts, erect shoulders and firm step.

How Many Different Articles?

A RECENTLY published estimate of the retail problems of three types of dealers has estimated that the average druggist has 5000 different articles on his shelves, the hardware dealer carries from 6000 to 10,000, and the grocer a little over 1000. The problem of knowing where all this material is and of fitting each item to the demand makes the complication of the retailer's work. It has always seemed that few retail stocks were as complicated as that of a bookstore, altho probably there are but a few of the larger stores which carry as many as 10,000 different titles. Where the retail bookseller's problem lies is that he needs such detailed information about each one of these items. When the list becomes too long, departmentizing is an absolute necessity, if the customer is to receive the best of service. In many cases probably the retailer could obtain as large total sales by eliminating distribution in the standard line, getting the same total sales, but with less goods on hand at any one time.

A Valuable Reference Book

FOR a great many years, a German handbook called "Minerva" was the standard reference book for information with regard to institutions of learning thruout the world. Every good reference library had a copy and turned to it for information that could be had from no other source. During our first year in the war, a lady called on a librarian in central Texas for information as to the name of some one on the faculty of a university in that same state. The librarian, being well trained in the use of her reference books, turned to "Minerva" and gave the information promptly. The inquirer, however, was greatly shocked to think that a German reference book should be in use to find information about American institutions of learning, and yet no other reference book would have given that information so promptly.

A. & C. Black of London is trying to supply a similar book, which is now issued simultaneously in London and by the Macmillan Company, New York, entitled "Athena: A Yearbook of the Learned World." If its publishers prove as indefatigable as were the German publishers in gathering the information the book will be an invaluable reference book, and may be appreciated by publishers of textbooks, as well as others in search of addresses. Some of the American universities seem to have failed to answer the publishers' inquiry, as under the University of Pennsylvania we find "No particulars received" and under Purdue University the same information. It is hoped that the later editions will gather this information more completely.

Battle of the Books

ENGLISH papers tell of an interesting debate on the condition of the English novel between Hugh Walpole and Gilbert K. Chesterton, which took place shortly before Mr. Chesterton's departure for America. Edmund Gosse was the judge.

The chief points of the two debaters were as follows:

Mr. Chesterton—The modern novel is a sign of social decay.

There is no form in it—no limits to what you can put into it—from a recollection of travels in Iceland to a dissertation on proportional representation.

It is a sack into which the writer can stuff any kind of thing he has about him.

The novel of the future, if novelists continue on their present lines, will need no hero and heroine.

Mr. Walpole—This argument is disproved by the works of Thomas Hardy, Joseph Conrad, Rudyard Kipling, and Henry James—four of the greatest novelists of any period.

They are masters of form compared with Richardson and Trollope, Dickens, and even Disraeli.

The modern novelist's chief trouble is his anxiety about form. He can't get away from the obsession of form.

Mr. Chesterton imagines he sees the twilight of the novel, but I see the dawn of a greater perfection.

Mr. Gosse—(summing up)—I cannot award the prize to either of you.

We know nothing we did not know before, and we feel much less sure of what we do know.

We have had a very interesting discussion, but it has thrown no light whatever on the subject.

And so the battle ended.

Among the Publishers

A Week's Gleanings of Book-trade News

MARY DIXON THABER, whose latest book, "The Intellectuals" will be published by Dorrance, February 12, is not a wholly bookish person. She has recently acquired—to have and to hold—the Eastern Tennis Championship of the United States.

THE 1921 Volume 1 Automobile Blue Book (New York, Ontario and adjacent Canada) goes to press February 8. It will be ready in April and will be brought right up to date, with many new maps, new points of interest and several new features.

MOFFAT, YARD & Company have just received from Johan Bojer a collection of short love stories that show the author of "The Great Hunger" and "The Power of a Lie" in an altogether new mood. These will soon make their appearance in various American magazines.

HOUDINI, the magician, known all over the world for his marvelous feats, has written a book of exposure, "Miracle Mongers and Their Methods," which will give a complete account of how the strong men and the sword swallows and the fire eaters and the human ostriches and all the other professional workers of marvels delude their audiences. It will be published the latter part of next week by E. P. Dutton & Co.

BEFORE he finally became actively absorbed in his devotion to Sinn Fein the late Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, wrote a book on "The Principles of Freedom" in which he set forth the desires, the visions, the ideas and the aims which animate the organization for whose benefit he gave his life. It will be published about the first of February by E. P. Dutton & Co., and then American readers can learn from the pen of the man who made himself, perhaps the most widely known protagonist of the cause of the complete separation of Ireland from England, just what are the guiding convictions of Sinn Fein.

While in England, Vachel Lindsay was asked about the future of Anglo-American friendship. The Springfield poet answered characteristically: "I believe many things are working for a unity of the nations, for a great unity of the peoples. And there are other forces fighting against it. And I believe that one of the greatest, most dependable, best defended bulwarks of world peace is—the English dictionary."

"Some of your poems, Mr. Lindsay, bear the caption 'in the American language.'"

"Yes, but the American language is made up of English words. And in that common language lies a great hope."

"MUCH ADO About Peter" an early popular story of Jean Webster's will be published by the Century Co. this spring in a new illustrated edition.

VOLUME 3 of "The Cambridge History of American Literature" has now been completed. As Volume 3 is published in 2 volumes, the set consists of four volumes (Putnams).

HUGH WALPOLE has apparently contracted the prize-taking habit. Last year he was awarded the Tait Black Prize by the University of Edinburgh for "The Secret City" as the finest novel in 1919. This year he has walked off with the prize again, this time for "The Captives," which was published in this country a few weeks ago by George H. Doran Company.

AMONG the interesting new books on the Cosmopolitan spring list are: a new novel by a new Cosmopolitan author, "The Kingdom Round the Corner" by Coningsby Dawson; a new volume from the pen of James Oliver Curwood, "God's Country;" and "Find The Woman" a novel of youth and mystery, by Arthur Somers Roche.

PUTNAMs have recently published three boons which will appeal to the large theater-loving public. These are: "The Bad Man," Porter Emerson Browne's delicious play, now converted into a novel by Charles Hanson Towne, the former editor of McClure's; "Enter Madame," a play in three acts, by Gilda Varesi and Dolly Byrne. Gilda Varesi is the unusually versatile, for she plays the leading rôle in her popular play; and "Deburau," by Sacha Guitry, translated by Granville Barker, which had a successful season in Paris, and is produced in New York by Belasco.

GEORGE McMANUS, the cartoonist has embarked upon the publishing business. Another book of his "Bringing Up Father" cartoons in colors will appear in March. The Embee Distributing Co., under whose imprint the book is published was organized by Mr. McManus over a year ago for the purpose of manufacturing and distributing his "Bringing Up Father" game. The success of this game as well as of the "Bringing Up Father" books in black and white which are published by Cupples & Leon, has emboldened Mr. McManus to undertake a book in colors on his own hook. The book will be handled by the American News Company and its branches. The sales of the black and white books of these cartoons in two years has reached the 2,500,000 mark.

The Weekly Record of New Publications

This list aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publications. Pamphlets will be included only if of special value. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. When not specified the binding is cloth. Imprint date is stated [or best available date, preferably copyright date, in bracket] only when it differs from year of entry. Copyright date is stated only when it differs from imprint date: otherwise simply "c." No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n. d.].

Sizes are indicated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.) Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Ff. (48mo: 10 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

Rare Books, Autographs and Prints

IT may not be generally known that the correspondence of Arthur Hallam with Alfred Tennyson and his sister, to whom he was engaged, is among the treasures of the Wellesley College Library.

In the current catalog of Bernard Quaritch of London the Kelmscott Chaucer is listed at £200. Only a few years ago it sold as low as £50 and it was generally believed to have had its day.

There will be an exhibition of fine prints of old and modern masters at the gallery of E. Weyhe, Madison Ave., from January 25 to February 5. There are about twenty Zorns on view and among others there are some fine Rembrandts and Whistlers.

The Brooklyn Museum announces an exhibition in the Print Galleries of subjects to commemorate the landing of the Pilgrims. The exhibition of about 150 prints will continue until February 15 and is intended as a contribution to the Pilgrim Tercentenary Celebration.

Sporting prints, English color prints, original drawings and views from the stock of the late George D. Smith will be sold at the Anderson Galleries on the evening of February 3. The original drawings include work by Hablot K. Browne, George Cruikshank, George Du Maurier, Thomas Rowlandson and many other artists of lesser fame.

Colored plate books, which were temporarily eclipsed by the rarities of early English literature which has attracted world wide attention, are returning to old time favor and are making new high records. An uncut copy of the first edition of Combe's "Tours of Dr. Syntax," with colored plates by Rowlandson, recently brought £280 at Puttick & Simpson's in London. A copy of "The Annals of Galantry" with colored plates by Cruikshank £90.

Selections from the library of a Pennsylvanian and also a portion of one from England will be sold at the Anderson Galleries February 8. A special feature of this sale is the large number of collected sets, mainly of first editions, of American and English authors. Among these are the works of Lord Lytton in 110 volumes; James Fenimore Cooper, 115 volumes; Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, 35 volumes; Charles Dickens, 57 volumes; Bret Harte, 41 volumes and all presentation copies; Samuel Lover, 12 volumes; Charles Reade, 45 volumes; and W. M. Thackeray, 68 volumes. There are also some choice manuscripts, standard sets in fine leather bindings mainly by the best English binders, a few scarce first editions and some miscellaneous rarities.

We are now fairly started on the last half of this auction season and the recent Smith and Edgar sales furnish a fair indication of what we may expect. Quite in keeping with good business and the times, the old days of erratic, hit or miss buying seems to have passed. Occasionally, a collector wanting a book or manuscript badly is quite willing to pay an extravagant price, but such cases are exceptions. Collectors and dealers are using sterling good sense, and prices generally are quite what they should be. There are of course bargains in mediocre books, and the second hand dealer and the buyer for his home library profit from them, but even books of this character are bringing a good deal more than they were a few years ago.

The death of Henry W. Bruton, which occurred in Gloucester, England, last month, removes one of the last surviving links with George Cruikshank, the great illustrator, who died some forty years ago. Bruton was 77 years old and had been interested in book collecting since his youth. He first met Cruikshank at Sotheby's, March 19, 1872, and on the same day became acquainted with Dr. Edward Truman, another Cruikshank collector and enthusiast. In 1897, Mr. Bruton decided to sell his collection of Cruikshankiana, one of the choicest of its kind, and it was sold in June of that year at Sotheby's and realized £2518, which was low compared with present values. When Dr. Truman died, Mr. Bruton became one of his executors, preparing the catalog of his friend's books and prints; the sale of which lasted six days at Sotheby's in May, 1906, and realized £954. Mr. Bruton's interest in Cruikshankiana never ceased, but his later collecting was devoted to other lines. He was, in later years, greatly interested in Rembrandt etchings, original drawings of Rowlandson and the early works of Dickens.

The military papers of General Richard Monckton, second in command in the successful expedition against Quebec, including many letters and documents of the greatest historical interest and value, will be sold at Sotheby's, in London, February 10. General Monckton appears to have been very careful in preserving all material that came into his hands and his family has held it intact during the long period since. The letters include a notable series of fifty or more written by General Wolfe during the preparation of the expedition against Quebec and furnish the most detailed and authoritative history of this epoch-making campaign. Among the documents is the order for the expulsion of the Acadians from Nova Scotia, immortalized in Longfellow's "Evangeline," and General Wolfe's plans if he was victorious, and also a scheme for the final overthrow of French influence and power in North America. There are also orderly books of the period and many French papers formerly belonging to Marquis de Vandreuil, the French governor of Canada, which tell the other side of the struggle. It would seem regrettable, indeed, if the British and Canadian governments failed to take sufficient interest in this invaluable historical material to preserve it intact. It is reported that the British Museum is interested, and certainly these papers would make an addition to its great Americana collection that would be worth while.

Part III. of selections from the purchases and stock of the late George D. Smith was sold at the Anderson Galleries, January 20 and 21, by order of his estate. This part brought $55,225, making the grand total from the three parts $163,478. The highest price was $3700 paid by Ernest Dressel North for Martha Washington's Bible, printed at the Clarendon Press, Oxford, in 1783, with her autograph in three places. Gabriel Wells paid $3300 for Lord Byron's manuscript of "Sardanapalus" written at Ravenna and considered one of the most important Byron manuscripts in existence. Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach gave $2500 for the Bridgewater copy of the first edition with the first title-page of Milton's "Paradise Lost." The manuscript poem of Captain Nathan Hale, descriptive of the first Revolutionary war camp, at Cambridge, four small quarto pages, was bought by Byrne Hackett for $500. Other important items and the prices which they brought were the following: Elizabeth Barrett Browning's "Sonnets," 1847, privately printed, $308.50; Burns's "Poems," Kilmarnock edition, $2275; Beauvais's "Mirrour of the World," Westminster, 1490, printed by Caxton, $2625; Grimm's "German Popular Stories," illustrated by George Cruikshank, 1826, first issue of the first edition, $800; Dickens's "American Notes," 1842, first issue of the first edition and an author's presentation copy, $700; a transcription in Dickens's handwriting of "The Death of Little Nell," with presentation inscription signed, $210; Herriek's "Hesperides," 1647, first edition, $900; Ben Jonson's own copy of Horace printed at Florence, in 1613, with the great dramatist's name on the title-page, $530; Lamb's "Elia," uncut, 1823-33, first editions, $355; Session Laws of New Jersey, printed at Perth Amboy, 1723, the first book printed in New Jersey, $1175; "The New Testament in English," London, 1546, a unique and hitherto unknown and undescribed edition of Coverdale's version, $2460; Shakespeare's "Henry the Fifth," London, 1608, third edition, $1010; Spenser's "Faerie Queen," 1590-96, first issue of the first edition, $1200; "Complaints," 1591, $135, and "Colin Clout," 1595, $300; the original manuscript of a portion of an unpublished play by W. M. Thackeray, twelve octavo pages, about 1837, $485; Walton's "Angler," 1653, first edition, $1600; and Trumbull's "McFingal," 1782, first edition, Washington's copy with his autograph, $1400.

'Tis True 'Tis Pity; and Pity 'Tis 'Tis True

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 19.—"A few days ago one of the financial agencies (either Dun's or Bradstreet's) gave out the information that of all the failures recorded in 1920, 84 per cent, were of firms which did not advertise."

This was the statement of George A. Cullen, Vice President of the North American Fruit Exchange and Vice President of the Lackawana Railroad, in an address to the New York Agricultural Society at its meeting just ended here.

What part will publicity plans play in your Budget for 1921?

REPRINT

Of this important standardwork, indispensable to librarians, collectors, museums, etc., a reprint will be shortly published. The basis will be the last or 5th edition of which Brunet himself said: "Cinquième édition originale entièrement refondue et augmentée d'un tiers par l'auteur." The reprint will be an exact reproduction page by page and column by column of the original edition. For many years this standardwork, indispensable to every one who is interested in books, has been out of print and high prices have been paid for it in the antiquarian booktrade. Already much in demand in earlier years, within the last few years especially Brunet has become more and more in all countries the invaluable bibliographical dictionary which can not be replaced by any other publication. Brunet is indispensable to the bookseller and bookcollector, not less than to libraries, museums and institutes by the unparalleled careful annotations and references.

The number of copies of this reprint is limited.

A Larger Public for Better Books

What the working out of an ideal has done in Chicago for Book Publishers.

The Chicago Daily News Book Page entered the literary field four years ago with a well-defined ideal. That ideal was better reading and more of it.

Three great problems were apparent. First, there was a degree of indifference to books in general. Second, most of the interest which was shown in them was confined to the meretricious "best-seller" type. Third, and as a natural result of the second consideration, almost any book of the subtler or more literary character was looked upon with suspicion and regarded as "high brow."

The task was to show the larger public that the reading of good books is one of the most fascinating of occupations. And to establish a taste for these books of merit, it was necessary to prove to readers that a story which is not purposely sensational may be fully as gripping or charming as a "thriller."

To meet this situation The Daily News set out deliberately to establish a new kind of Book Page. Not only was the purpose of this page to separate the literary sheep from the goats and to condemn mercilessly all unworthy time-wasters, but to spare no pains to promote the sale and circulation of writing of merit.

Obviously, an appeal to those already deeply interested in literary affairs was not sufficient. It was necessary to present views and discussions which would be read and enjoyed by people who either had not yet learned to discriminate, or who did not care to discriminate. For that reason an entirely different style and point of view were developed.

And the page is different in style and point of view, which make the reading of it every Wednesday a delightful habit with thousands of Chicago men and women. They know that they will not be preached at, talked down to, or bored by The Book Page. They are always confident that they will receive through it the most reliable information, criticism and discourse in a style which is brilliant and informal.

Has this new sort of book pages been successful?

No indication of the success that has attended the venture is more eloquent than the testimonial of the book publishers of the country as expressed in the volume of advertising they have done, and continue to do, in The Book Page. Here is the record for the year of 1920:

The Daily News, FIRST .....	106,822	lines
Tribune .....	92,898	"
Post .....	68,037	"
Herald-Examiner .....	33,076	"
American .....	2,827	"
Journal .....	1,912	"

No one is in better position than these publishers to determine the merit of The Book Page. They knew that it sells books, and that to sell them it must have wide circulation among the kind of people who buy and read books.

This yearly record is a story of success—a vindication of the idea that a book page need not wear myopic specs in order to attain high literary position.

The Book Page is a success, and it continues to be, month in and month out, the main point of contact between America's leading publishers of good books and Chicago's greatest single audience of readers—the more than 1,200,000 men, women and children who buy and read the 400,000 copies of The Daily News sold every day.
